Courageous Conversations in a Care Leadership Environment

Communication is key to ensure good working relationships between manager and employee. Two-way conversations are vital whereby both parties interact and information is passed back and forth which results in successful outcomes. This program has been developed to assist leaders in having the 'hard' or 'difficult' conversations that often don't occur because it takes courage to bring up certain topics.

Courageous Conversations can be overwhelming but once a leader has the skills and experience and, most importantly, the confidence, to address any workplace issue, they immediately see the benefits for both themselves and the employee. We follow a step-by-step guide to having conversations within a Care Environment that have meaningful outcomes for both parties and create an environment of trust and improved workplace culture.
